

ECON 100205
Principles of Economics (II)
WINTER 2023

Instructor:

Stephen, Jui-Hsien, Chou

E-mail:

jhchou@mx.nthu.edu.tw

Telephone:

(03) 5162131

Time:

W5W6W7

Location:

TSMC 103

Office Hours:

Thursday 13:30 PM - 14:30 PM

Textbook:

ECONOMICS, GLOBAL EDITION (8TH EDITION), Glenn P. Hubbard and Anthony P. O'Brien (2021).

Course Description:

This course offers several applications in Microeconomics and an introduction to macroeconomics theories and policies. We will discuss topics such as pricing strategy, GDP, unemployment, and inflation. We will also introduce various uses of macroeconomic policy by government to achieve some goals such as promoting long-run economic growth, stabilizing inflation, and smoothing out the business cycle.

AACSB:

Mission of the College Our mission is to cultivate business leaders and managerial talent who serve our economy and industries with integrity

Course Requirements and Grading Policies:

Examinations:

There will be total Two Exams: one Midterm Exam and one Final Exam. The higher of the two exam will count 60%, while the other one will count 40%. The exams are scheduled as following:

Midterm Exam:	April 26	(Week 11)
Final Exam:	May 31	(Week 16)

Class Resources and Communication:

T.A. Office Hours:

In addition to Professor Chou's office hour, there will be additional office hour held by the T.A. for this course. The time and location of the T.A. office hour will be announced on eeClass eeClass:

Important class announcement, lecture slides, and other course-related material will be posted on eeClass. However, if you wish to contact me and expect to get a reply, please write an e-mail directly to me