Course Aims / Description

1. Primary aim

Travel literature has been increasingly popular. Including several writing styles, such as narrative and expository, and providing intriguing knowledge and information, the genre is great for the ESL students who attempt to read the authentic materials and to cultivate their lifetime reading habits. This elective course aims to give the students an opportunity to read an unmodified English text which is created for native speakers of English and to apply their reading skills to actually read a novel.

In this course, students are introduced to a humorous travel memoir, the Geography of Bliss, written by Eric Weiner, a longtime NPR foreign correspondent. The students will be taught the structure of a narrative text to enhance their comprehension and to help them efficiently recall information in the texts. Nevertheless, the course is not intended to teach them how to read a novel for literature-analysis but for information-gathering techniques. Having gathered sufficient information, they are encouraged to interact with texts by anticipating, picturing, interacting, and evaluating. Consequently, the students will develop practical reading strategies and become sophisticated and active readers.

2. Subsidiary aim

In addition to reading skills, the course is also designed to expand students' vocabulary to different fields. While trying to decipher words in the novel, students deepen and widen their vocabulary knowledge. Furthermore, they will learn writing devices, such as foreshadowing, flashback, and show but not tell, used in creative writing.

3. Corresponding CEFR Can-do statements

- Can-do statement #1 Students can understand main ideas expressed in articles on complex and controversial topics.
- Can-do statement #2 Students can read texts of different styles independently.
- Can-do statement #3 Students can achieve a certain degree of fluency while sharing their opinions.
- Can-do statement #4 Students can present a detailed description and weigh up pros and cons on a range of topics.
- Can-do statement #5 Students can produce a continuous stretch of language without glaring errors that cause misunderstandings and without noticeable pauses that hinder effective communication.
